

Les Gragnotes
レ・グラニヨット

At the gateway to Corbières, in the village of Paziols in Languedoc-Roussillon, you'll find Les Gragnottes—named after the Occitan word for “frogs.”

Erika and Benoît, the couple behind the wines, originally worked in the watchmaking industry. Erika's great-grandfather once owned vineyards in Paziols, but over time, no one in the family remained to tend the land. When the property was about to be sold, Benoît saw it as the perfect chance to embrace a slower, nature-connected life in the countryside. Through Erika, they took over the vineyard and made the move.

At first, they planned to grow vegetables and fruit, and simply sell the grapes. But after meeting natural winemakers like De Mena and La Volta, they were deeply inspired and decided to make wine themselves.

Most of their vines are over 50 years old, with some even rumored to be centuries old. Since founding their domaine in 2017, Erika

The cuvée name comes from the ages of the winemakers, Benoît and Erika—38 and 29 years old respectively in 2021. Originally conceived as a single-varietal Grenache, the wine evolved into a blend when the grapes didn't meet their quality expectations. For the 2021 vintage, they focused on whole-cluster fermentation with Carignan and Grenache. The wine shows a deep garnet hue, and on the palate, it delivers a firm tannic structure, highlighted by notes of blackcurrant and a touch of spice.

Muse is crafted from 30-year-old, relatively young vines. Grapes are harvested early in the morning to avoid the heat, then gently pressed in a cool underground cellar. Bottling takes place during the winter, in February.

This charming rosé offers aromas of ripe red berries and strawberries, with a crisp, refreshing palate and just the right touch of acidity.
